Hello, and welcome to the world of character recording where your creations come to life to sell their own books! Our interviews are conducted with characters ONLY and our songs and videos feature their unique voices, each one indorsed by their creator and author of their bigger than fiction lives. The following is an agreement making sure you know what The Character Studio Dot Com does and what you will get out of it for your character and your book. Once you read the agreement, please fill out the information and send it back with your book that will be nonreturnable. If you are under contract with a publisher or do not own the copyrights for your illustrations, we will also need their written permission or email along with this agreement so that we can use your chosen illustration as a coloring page for The J.C. Lamb Morning Show and artwork for the CD cover (if a song is recorded.)

The fine print...

As your producer, after reading your book, we will discuss the type of personality we feel fits your character and create a special voice to go with it. It is agreed The Character Studio Dot Com will furnish recorded sample material in the form of mp3 by email for approval. Approval must come back in writing (email) within 48 hours of receipt. After final approval no changes can be made to the recording. All recordings are based on a certain amount of studio time and are nonrefundable. If you request touches that go over the basic studio time, the charge will be $40.00 per hour. ONE copy of the recordings will be delivered in podcast download, mp3 by Internet and CD/DVD by mail. Once these recordings are sent to you, the creator of the character will have unlimited use of them all, for website, ebook, email, blog, chat or advertisement on radio, television or internet, as long as they are not altered in any way or used by a third party for financial gain. (This would include use in book trailers) It is also agreed that full credit will be given to The Character Studio Dot Com. What you are buying is studio time, and your recordings are for advertising purposes only and not to be sold without permission. For the convenience of your listeners, songs will always be available from the producer Mary's Lamb, Inc. on itunes. You may also purchase master recordings of full songs on CD and videos on DVD at wholesale prices if you wish to sell them or give them away with your book. (We also provide for purchase at wholesale prices, slips to adhere inside the back cover) Controlling sales and third party use helps to insure only the best quality of your song to be released. Any author, whose character songs are chosen to be produced on the best of The Character Studio Dot Com sales lists, will be paid royalties for all sales based on BMI and ASCAP standard music sales scale.

By signing this agreement, the character's creator (You the author) gives Mary's Lamb, Inc., affiliated radio shows, Podcasts, TV shows, Video productions, blogs and The Character Studio Dot Com permission to use recordings and any selected illustrations for their websites, sales, advertising and syndication efforts, as long as the character, author and title of book are credited.

Your order is for ONE character's voice and radio interview ($49.99 for each additional character) in the form of ONE Podcast on "The J.C. Lamb Morning Show" that may be syndicated on radio programs that run or download the show (this includes Christian radio, television and podcast broadcasters such as itunes, etc.) The introductory price for the voice/interview is $99.99, with an option of adding an original song during your session and creating a live music video.
